Who we are?

Started in 2011 as a voluntary youth group, TYF is a civil, non-governmental and non-profit foundation. After a series of community activities, it was officially registered with the Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor on March 25th, 2013, with license No. 312/ 2013, and in accordance with Law No. (1) of 2001.

Tamdeen Youth Foundation provides emergency humanitarian response and contributes to supporting socio-economic interventions to create and ensure adequate livelihood opportunities for members of society and enable them to thrive, grow and participate in immediate and long-term change in their lives, focusing on the role of youth in community participation, development and peace-building in order to achieve a stable and effective society.

In 2021, we are proud to celebrate the change that TYF has made together with donors and partners.

TYF's Message

2021 was extraordinary, as the humanitarian crisis in Yemen has worsened, Coved-19 pandemic has imposed multiple challenges on the economic, health and social levels, and donors funding for the humanitarian response plan has decreased, putting more commitments on the Foundation and more responsibility to continue the process we started in 2013.

At TYF, we proceed from our deep belief in the self-potential of society and the energies of its members, especially youth, and their ability to bring about real and sustainable change, if effectively invested.

We didn't stand idly by. Together with our donor partners, UN and international organizations and the Government and private sectors, we have been able to implement humanitarian and development projects and provide sustainable sources of income to thousands of families whose lives have improved for the better.

The Foundation also continues to strive for permanent development and to make a qualitative shift in its performance through its cumulative approach, the exchange of best practices to promote its institutional building and governance, and the adoption of strategic directions based on the Triple Nexus approach (humanitarian response, development cooperation and peace-building). The Foundation has undergone a significant transformation at the sectoral and program levels, as well as its outstanding performance based on the principle of rapid and effective response and sustainable impact.

By all accounts, 2021 has been a difficult year, but together with our partners, we have shown that we are more resilient to the challenges and able to continue to achieve the goals that we have set out, no matter what circumstances and difficulties.

We are proud of what we have achieved in 2021, and we look forward to the new year with many promising hopes to continue working towards our strategic objectives.

We thank all the partners who believe in TYF's mission and great role. We also thank all TYF's staff and volunteers for their dedication, who share the same vision and values that we cherish.

We extend our thanks to all the partners who believe in the mission of the Foundation and its great role. I also thank the Foundation's work team and all its employees and volunteers for their sincerity and dedication, and who share the same vision and values that we cherish.

Yemen continues to be the world's largest humanitarian crisis and relief operation. This crisis is the result of the violent armed conflict that escalated seven years ago. It has killed and wounded tens of thousands of civilians and caused great suffering to Yemenis.

In 2021, the conflict intensified and caused 172,000 displacement, resulting in at least 4 million IDPs.

The collapse of the economy and currency continued with the depletion of foreign reserves and the inability of the government to support 90% of the food and other goods that Yemen relies on for import.

Due to the global decline caused by Covid-19 pandemic, the situation has worsened, resulting in a sharp decline in remittances - the largest source of foreign currency and lifeline for many families, where 80 per cent of the population lives below the poverty line.

As a result, millions of other people could not afford to meet their basic needs. The fuel crisis has also worsened, particularly in northern Yemen, and the transportations costs have increased. The Government's ability to pay salaries and pensions to public officials on a regular basis has been hampered and public services have deteriorated.

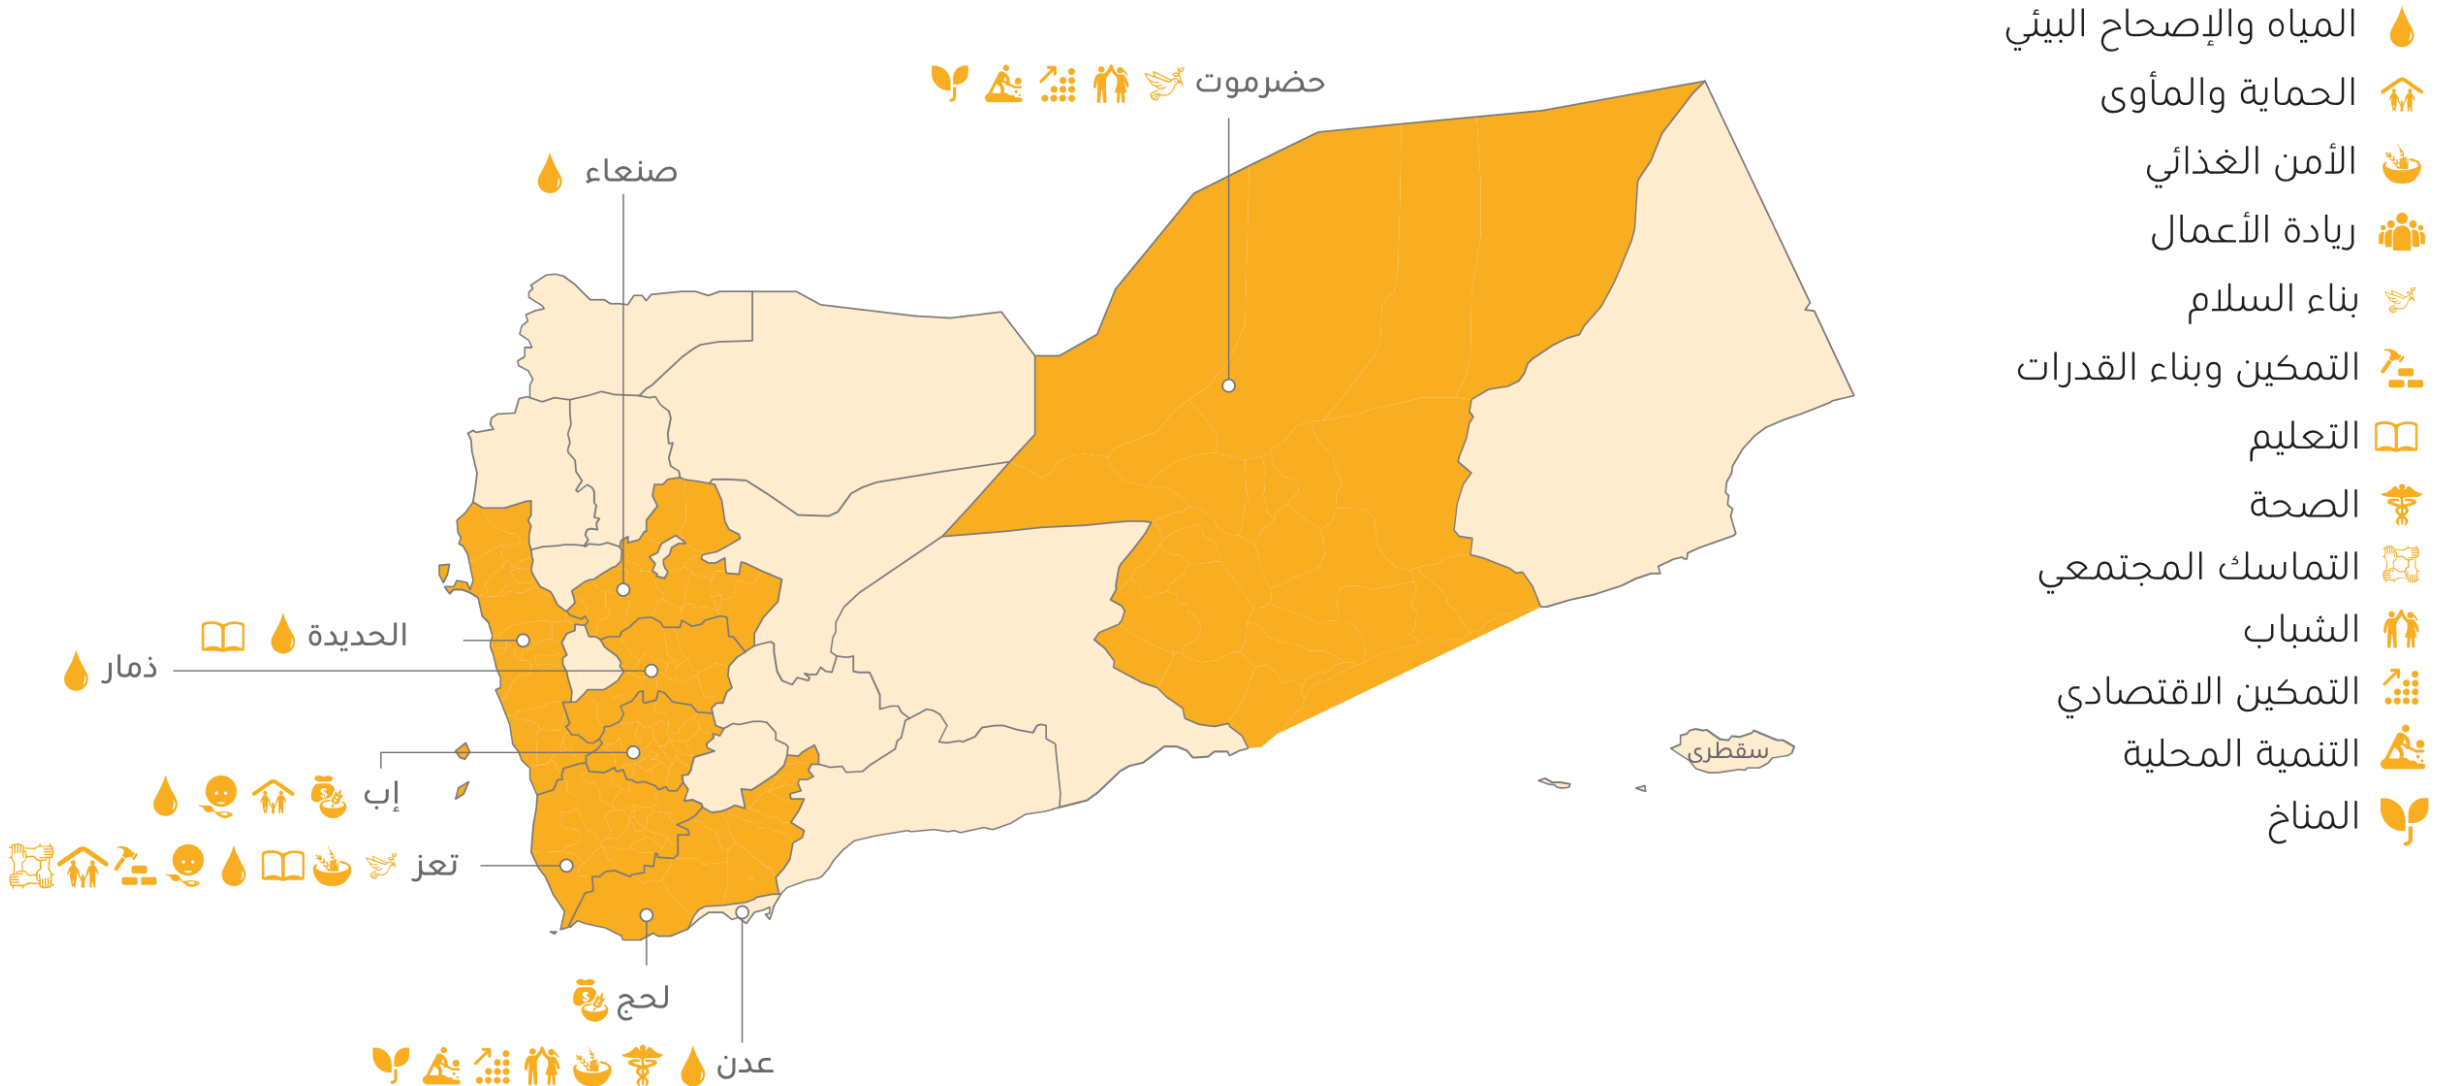

The conflict has disrupted economic activities on a large scale, and has significantly reduced employment and income in the private and public sectors, with the economy contracting by an estimated 50% over the past three years.

Based on the analysis of 2022 Humanitarian Needs Overview, it is estimated that 20.7 million people, 66% of the total population, need humanitarian assistance. It is also estimated that 12.1 million people are in dire need. These people face a crisis or worse levels of extreme need to get the necessities of life and maintain their health and safety and their coping strategies just to survive.

Shelter and CCCM Program

There are more than 4 million IDPs in Yemen since the escalation of the conflict. These IDPs do not receive life-saving emergency services at an adequate rate, and that's why our interventions in providing shelter, coordinating and optimizing services at hosting sites are vital and important.

Education Program

Access to safe education remains a challenge for children in Yemen. The prolonged crisis has led to the interruption of education for about 2.05 million children. Tamdeen Youth Foundation, in partnership with Yemen Humanitarian Fund OCHA, implemented two projects in 2021. It enabled 6,869 children to attend school in safe and healthy environments, where children received basic support in nutrition, education and health care.

WASH Program

Water, sanitation and hygiene conditions are still one of the main factors causing infectious diseases in Yemen. And to reduce this, TYF has contributed in 2021 to improving access to safe water, restoring and maintaining infrastructure, expanding the use of solar energy to provide more economically viable solutions and maintain environmental integrity.

Health and Nutrition Program

In 2021 Yemen's health system was deteriorating with the worsening economic crisis, the consequences of the Covid-19 pandemic, and the conflict that destroyed many health facilities. There were 27.7 people in urgent need of health care and nutrition. Through its active partnership with OCHA, TYF has been able to contribute to promoting the health system and operating a range of health facilities to provide basic health services, reduce disease outbreaks and address the immediate and underlying causes of malnutrition.

Outputs and Outcomes

Building the capacity of youth from 5 governorates in debate and dialogue. | Promoting a culture of dialogue among members of society.

Socio-economic Development Sector

In light of the economic, political and social changes that have taken place in Yemeni society over the past six years, which have seen an increase in the frequency of armed conflict, the resulting cessation of a large part of the productive processes in the economy, the absence of the Government from the economic landscape and the complete cessation of public investment programs, unemployment and poverty rates have increased primarily within society and among youth.

TYF has therefore paid particular attention to the recovery, economic recovery and community development sector by focusing on linking humanitarian assistance to development and investing in available domestic resources and human capital to create sustainable sources of income, jobs and solutions.

Job Fair Project

In an innovative way, free from the constraints of traditional recruitment processes, the project allowed job-seekers and new graduates to present their resumes, browse the companies, communicate directly with their representatives, attend seminars, share information on available jobs, develop their skills, inform them of the needs of the labor market and train them to the advantage of both parties, to those jobs-seekers and to private sector companies looking to hire the best.

The network protects the climate, promotes renewable energy, and develops development strategies to reduce carbon emissions from enterprises throughout the region. The network also focuses on areas related to protecting the region from water scarcity, climate change and food insecurity.

It is part of the Global Climate Action Network, which represents more than 900 members in more than 90 countries.

Initiatives

To translate TYF's vision of contributing to recovery and sustainable development, initiatives and campaigns are part of its work to harness all available resources and potential to improve the quality of life and to enable environments with minimum conditions of human dignity.

Humanitarian Action Localization Initiative

It aims to optimize humanitarian response in Yemen with a more comprehensive and effective participatory approach, to ensure that all those in need have access to rapid, effective and sustainable humanitarian assistance, and to enable local organizations to play their natural role in the humanitarian action system.

January 2021: Tamdeen Youth Foundation prepared the Humanitarian Action Localization Initiative

February: Coordinating with NEAR and ICVA networks, which TYF is a member of

March: Establishing the Preparatory Committee for the initiative headed by TYF

April: Coordinating with government agencies in Sana'a and Aden

May: The committee held 5 meetings with 35 Yemeni organizations

June: Holding a virtual meeting with the U.S. envoy to Yemen, "Tim Lenderking"

July: Holding a virtual meeting with the Danish Refugee Council Audrey Quafford.

August 19: Launching the "Localization of Humanitarian Action Initiative in Yemen" and issuing a joint statement by 66 Yemeni NGOs.

September - December 2021: Preparing a baseline and creating an enabling environment in collaboration with ICVA, HAG and Itar Foundation

What's ahead in 2022?

We enter 2022 with our will and determination enhanced by the accumulated achievements, and we realize that the new year will be equally challenging. We are sure that our humanitarian and development interventions are having an effective and sustainable impact, and that the initiatives adopted by TYF and the issues for which it is fighting are being resonated with more people and stakeholders.

We are full of hope and optimism that our work will make real change possible and help to reflect the real solutions that put development at the heart of our work, thereby ensuring people's health and dignity.

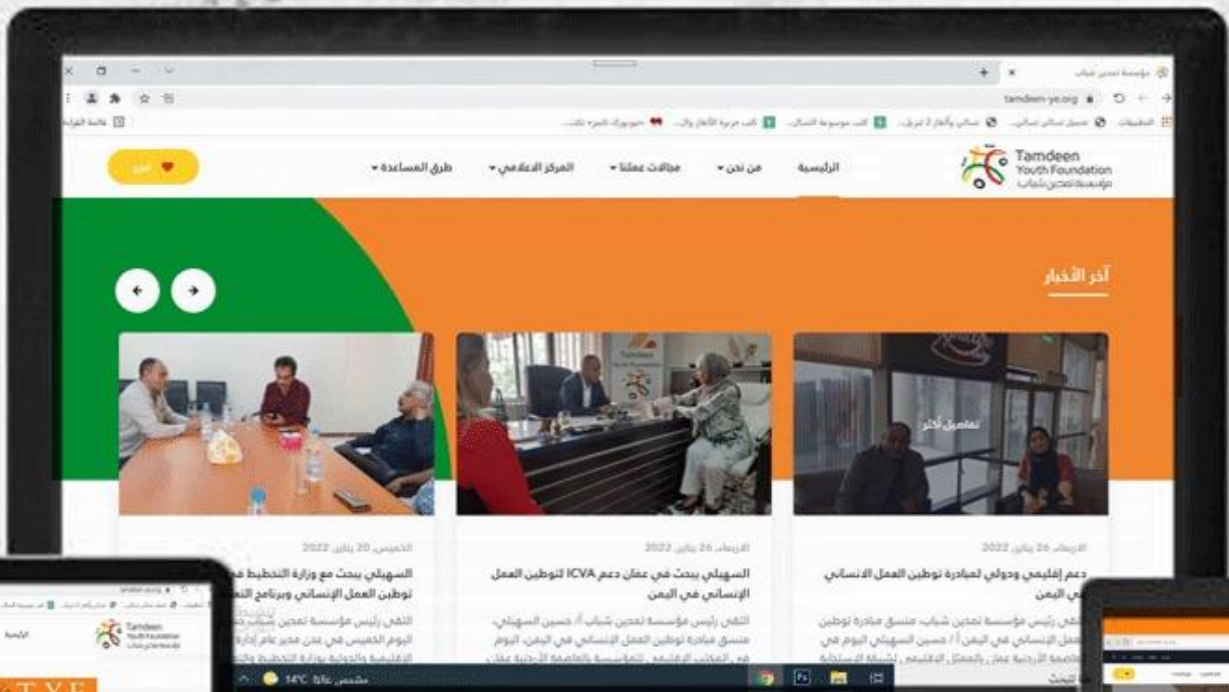

In 2022, economic recovery is at the top of our list of objectives and programs, along with the transformation of humanitarian and relief action in Yemen into a comprehensive system of participatory planning and implementation for sustainable development, enabling individuals, vulnerable groups and communities to interact and produce for a decent life, stability and prosperity.

We conclude this year with the launch of TYF's new website.

You can learn more about our programs, projects, activities, the impact we achieve in various areas of intervention, and our latest news. You can also communicate with us through the complaints and suggestions system.
